Going to a Concert

We are going to a concert! This will be a classical music concert with musicians playing violins, violas, cellos, and piano. Some of the musicians are the same age as you!

We will drive to the concert. I will see many people there. A person will greet us and ask if I would like any sensory tools like fidgets or an activity sheet.

Before the concert, there will be instruments that we can touch and even play! Someone will be there to help us and answer questions.

We will find a seat and wait for the concert to begin.

A person will welcome us to the concert and then the music will start. It might be loud sometimes and quiet other times. Something special will happen during the concert. We will listen for unusual sounds that the instruments can make.

When the music is finished, everyone will clap.

At the end of the concert, we will all sing a song together with the musicians. It is OK if you don't want to sing.

If I need a break, I can ask my grown-up to take me to a quiet space or to the bathroom.

When the concert is over, I will stay with my grown-up, and we will leave the room quietly. We will go home and talk about what we liked.
